

Learn Linux. In your inbox.

A free online resource for learning Linux — no paywall, no tracking, no sponsored sections. Four short newsletters land in your inbox on a schedule that suits the topic. Pick one or pick all four. Each one unsubscribes with a single click.

120+ GUIDES 4 NEWSLETTERS 0 ADS & TRACKERS 2026 SINCE

linuxinstitute.co.za → SCAN FOR HOME

$ Subscribe to the four streams

ONE SCAN PER STREAM • NO ACCOUNT NEEDED

T

Terminally Online

One Linux tip a day you can actually use. Skim it in the morning queue.

DAILY • CODE LEVEL

terminally-online →

D

Deep Tabs

The week's AI tooling on Linux — opencode, Ollama, llama.cpp. What shipped.

WEEKLY • AI TOOLING

deep-tabs →

S

Open Source Security

CVEs, advisories, hardening. What changed in OSS this fortnight. Plain English.

BIWEEKLY • HARDENING

open-source-security →

R

The Read

One long essay every Thursday. Linux stories, interviews, the kind you clip and reread.

WEEKLY • LONG READ

the-read →

TERMINALLY ONLINE ISSUE #043 • 11 JULY 2026 • 3-MIN READ

One command, one workflow. How to quit an editor that won't quit.

Today's tip concerns a moment most people hit within their first month on Linux: an editor that won't quit. You type `:q`. Nothing happens. Try `:q!` — three keystrokes that mean "quit, throw away changes."

